More Wins Than Losses for Libraries

On a long election night filled with tension and political upset, 79 libraries nationwide had referenda on the ballot. At press time, 54 wins and 11 losses were recorded, with the remainder either not applicable or still too close to call.

John Chrastka, founder and executive director of EveryLibrary, a nonprofit organization that advocates for library ballot initiatives (and a 2014 Library Journal Mover & Shaker), worked with 16 of those communities. Of those, EveryLibrary won nine and lost six, with one still too close to call at press time.

The wins total nearly $90 million.

The smallest operating levy in EveryLibrary’s win column was one of the most critical, according to Chrastka. Jeannette Public Library, PA, passed a one-mill increase for a total of 1.24 mills and $77,987, to replace municipal funding cut in fall 2015. The measure, which narrowly passed by 52 percent, will allow the library to keep its doors open.

The Mid-Continent Public Library (MCPL), Kansas City, MO, won an eight percent increase to its operating levy across three counties. The levy, known as Proposition L, is the first library increase to taxpayers since 1983; the vote passed by 62 percent. The resulting levy will result in an average one percent property tax increase over the current 32¢ tax per $100 assessed valuation for the average household, which accounts for approximately 95 percent of the library’s operating funds.

Rebekkah Smith Aldrich, coordinator of library sustainability for the Mid-Hudson Library System (MHLS), Poughkeepsie, NY, has her doubts about the practicality of library measures going up on this fall’s crowded ballot. But out of six libraries in New York’s fiscally conservative Hudson County with referenda on the docket, Smith Aldrich said, four won—although the Phoenixia Library lost by only 21 votes.

Voters also showed overwhelming approval for Ohio libraries, voting yes to all 15 public library issues on local ballots statewide. The successful ballot issues included nine renewal levies, three new levies—all of which passed by significant margins, with an average voter approval rate of 67 percent—and three renewals plus additions.

The Missoula Public Library (MPL) District, MT, will have a new facility
Frank W. Baker

Frank W. Baker is founder of the Media Literacy Clearinghouse, an online resource for educators. He helped craft the new Position Statement on Media Literacy for the National Council for the Social Studies in May 2016 and will participate in School Library Journal's Pop Literacy editorial webcast on December 6.

Interview

If you had to name the top three resources and issues today, what would they be? Every educator needs to be familiar with, and use, the media literacy core concepts and critical thinking questions. Both the Center for Media Literacy and the National Association of Media Literacy Education have downloadable concepts and questions that I would recommend every educator post in their classrooms. Since my approach...starts with visual literacy, I think it's very important that educators teach students how to “read” an image.

How do advertising techniques vary depending on the age of child consumers?

Examine the kinds of food products advertised during kids’ programs. Research has already shown that much of the food marketed to them is unhealthy and full of sugar. But the ads for these products won’t disclose the sugar content, for example. That’s one reason why coveting with an adult is essential. Older kids can develop some “healthy skepticism” where they are more suspicious and aware that a product ad is deceptive. This is where media literacy can be helpful. When teachers take the time to capture current ads and use them for analysis and deconstruction, we can help students become more media aware.

PUBLIC LIBRARY

After a $30 million bond was approved, with 58 percent voting yes. The new and expanded building will triple its computer capacity, expand digital collections, and offer access to video production, 3-D printing, and more.

Dorchester County, SC, voted yes on a $43 million “quality of life” referendum to help grow the county’s parks and libraries. Nearly 61 percent of residents approved the measure, which will provide at least $30 million to build two new library facilities and upgrade an existing library. Approved shortly after the tax increase was authorized by Hurricane Matthew, the bond represents a strong desire to invest in the community’s infrastructure.

LOCAL OPPOSITION

Despite the strong record of wins, Chrastka told Hotline, local opposition to library balloting in the form of direct mail and robocall campaigns represented a continuing trend in a number of communities.

The Meridian Library District (MLD), ID, was targeted, Chrastka noted. The district failed to pass two bonds that would have funded construction of new branches and community pools. The $12 million library bond was approved by 59 percent of voters but required a supermajority of 67.7 percent to pass. The cost to taxpayers would have been approximately $11.65 annually per $100,000 in assessed property value, or 92¢ per month.

Perhaps the most significant loss was the Douglas County Library, OR, proposed special library district. Without Measure 10-145, the county’s 11 libraries will probably close later in the year. Fifty-six percent of voters rejected the proposed district, taxes for which would have amounted to 44¢ per $1,000 of assessed property tax. The library is dependent on a percentage of timber revenue from Western Oregon O&C-BLM (Oregon & California Bureau of Land Management) forestlands, which has been falling in recent years; new O&C management plans have further reduced county funding. An independent library district would have provided a dedicated source of revenue.

As for what the larger implications of the general elections will mean for library measures going forward, Chrestka feels that libraries will become more reliant on local funding. The upcoming political climate may also encourage more fiscal conservatives to run for office, noted Smith Aldrich, which means libraries will have to step up their games when making their case for funding.

Librarians, Authors Support Kids Postelection

At the Ethel Walker School in Simsbury, CT, 20 minutes outside of Hartford, librarian Nishette Isaacs organized an election night watch party, preparing for the possibility of the historic event of the first woman winning the presidency. Since the majority of the 250 students at this private girls' school are boarders, kids were invited to the library for a pajama party to view news coverage. The students were sent back to their rooms before the results were finalized Tuesday night, and when they found out that Donald Trump, not Hillary Clinton, would be the next president of the United States, Isaacs knew she needed to offer the library as a gathering space again. While about 20 students staged a sit-in in the school's main building, Isaacs opened the library to about 70 girls to participate in discussion groups.

At another Connecticut private girls' school, librarian Sarah Ludwig created an interactive display to help the students share their feelings.

High school and some middle school walkouts were reported in San Francisco, Oakland, and Los Angeles, as well as in Austin, TX.

The student body of East St. Louis Senior High, IL, is 99 percent African American and one percent Hispanic. K.C. Boyd, librarian at East St. Louis and a Library Journal 2015 Mover & Shaker (M&S), said the election has been a big topic of conversation among students at the library during lunchtime. Some 18- or 19-year-olds who voted this year for the first time were deeply disappointed. Boyd has been pulling out books about Ida B. Wells and Congressman John Lewis, in addition to the Black Lives Matter book display she established earlier this fall.

Sarah Park Dahlén, assistant professor in the Master of Library and Information Science Program at St. Catherine University in St. Paul, said

TAKE ACTION!

Calling All Change Agents

It's time to ignite a movement in libraries, one that faces head-on the pressing threat brought by climate change and addresses every way we can help to secure a better future, or, in more stark terms, a future for the generations to follow. This seems more imperative every day, but the functional response is limited.

There are exceptions, of course. One is the New York Library Association (NYLA) Sustainability Initiative. In September 2015, as I described in "Our Triple Bottom Line" (ow.ly/O5zB06a7XL), I joined this small group of "co-creators" for an intensive think tank on what libraries can do. This work built upon the state's commitment to sustainability embodied in resolutions adopted by both NYLA and the American Library Association. It was critical to ask what next and to take steps toward an answer. Among the tangibles that emerged from the think tank was the Sustainability Initiative Purpose Statement. It reads:

To create leadership and provide tools to mobilize libraries to think and act sustainably,

In a way that builds awareness and consensus while inspiring action by members of the library community to own their role as sustainability leaders in their communities,

So that communities thrive, bounce back from disruption and are infused with new and better life for everyone.

We can make resolutions, and we can create purpose statements, but it is what happens next that counts. Taking action is exactly what the Sustainability Initiative has been doing in the year since that retreat. The group, joined by some new voices, split into teams and worked—with zeal, creativity, sincere effort, and collaborative spirit—toward bringing something meaningful to the 2016 NYLA conference in November in Saratoga Springs. There, the group presented a day of continuing education and revealed a tool for librarians to use as they

In times of division, here's a place where diverse ideas flourish

By Pamela Nyberg Kiesner, Director, Bellingham Public Library

It is more important than ever for individuals and organizations to stand strong against hate and intolerance and support equity, diversity and inclusion, as our nation reflects on our recent Presidential election and looks to the future.

The election of the President of the United States is among the most important steps we take as citizens to express our commitment to our country and our faith in democracy. Yet this year's contentious campaign season highlighted deep divisions among us. These divisions are not new, but the process of choosing our nation's leader revealed their depth and breadth.

Public libraries are in a unique and special position to promote equity, diversity and inclusion, and take a strong stand against hate and intolerance. We serve as safe havens and as trusted community resources for all. Today I join my library colleagues across the nation speaking out, reaffirming our collective commitment to offering welcoming and vital services and spaces.
Bellingham Public Library welcomes you regardless of what you look like, what faith you choose, what disabilities you may have, who you love, where you come from, what languages you speak, how much money you have or where you live.

We take very seriously our responsibilities to uphold freedom of speech and open exchange of knowledge and ideas, yet we will not tolerate hate speech or actions that threaten anyone’s safety or dignity.

We celebrate inclusion and opportunity for everyone, encouraging an environment where diverse ideas flourish and we oppose discrimination in all its forms. We offer ways for people to come together, face-to-face or electronically, to find information and resources to meet a variety of needs and interests.

At a time when critically evaluating information for factual accuracy is vitally important, we promote and provide access to credible sources, and help all community members find them. We offer access to materials, tools and expertise to help people be discerning knowledge consumers.

Public library core values are clear: free access, intellectual freedom, privacy and confidentiality. At the Bellingham Public Library, these responsibilities shape everything we do in service of our mission: Connecting our community with each other and the world to read, learn, meet and discover. We stand for these values unwaveringly.

Pamela Nyberg Kiesner is the director of the Bellingham Public Library and the chair of the Library Council of Washington.
Regular Meeting of the Library Board of Trustees
Wednesday, November 16, 2016 – Central Library
3:30 p.m.

Minutes of Actions and Decisions of the Library Board of Trustees of the Bellingham Public Library as authorized by RCW 27.12.210 and SEC. 7.02 Charter of the City of Bellingham.

Board Members Present: J. Gordon, Rachel Myers, Marilyn Mastor, Tom Barrett and Rick Osen

Library Staff: Pamela Kiesner, Lola Estelle, Beth Farley, Janice Keller, Jennifer Vander Ploeg and Wendy Jenkins

Others Present: April Barker, City Council Liaison

Call to order and introductions: Regular session was called to order at 3:33 p.m. by Chair, J. Gordon.

Approve/modify agenda: Rick Osen moved to approve the agenda. Marilyn Mastor seconded. Motion carried.

Public comment: No comments.

Consent agenda: Wendy noted that the October Tumblebooks circulation statistic wasn’t available when the packet was printed and provided the number – 4,483. Rachel Myers moved to approve the October 18, 2016 minutes and the October 2016 performance and activity measures and financial reports as amended. Tom Barrett seconded. Motion carried.

Board member reports: Rick commented that there were approximately 200 library measures this election year. Parr added that the Point Roberts measure did not pass; they had 55% of the vote, but needed 60% to pass.

J. reported that he has spent some time in the Burnaby Library which houses over 40 newspapers, approximately half in Chinese.

City Council liaison report: April reported that Council members had the opportunity to bring forward budget requests – most did not bring forward a request. At a Training the Trainer meeting put on by Cultures Connecting, April was struck by a quote from the Early Literacy Program Manager for Seattle Public Library, Cikeithia Pugh, “Just because you’re in every neighborhood doesn’t mean you’re servicing all communities.” She added that the Children’s Library does a good job of going out and serving our communities.
Council passed the 20-6 Comprehensive Plan Update. They also have been considering whether or not to make Bellingham a sanctuary city – the City already has policies in place that mimic sanctuary.

April also mentioned Whatcom Community Foundation’s Project Neighborly grants – a new opportunity focused on supporting efforts to increase kindness and curiosity and to build trust.

Friends of BPL report: No report.

Library Director’s report: Donations report: we received donations from the Willows Book Group and a grateful Interlibrary Loan patron. The Friends contributed $13,600 for our website refresh project.

The quarterly Joint Management Team meeting, with WCLS, was held. Pam also meets with Christine Perkins, Executive Director of WCLS, every other week to share information.

Pam attended the Literacy Council Breakfast, as did several of the trustees.

The Management Team held a 5 hour retreat to prioritize the 2017 work plan. Jennifer Vander Ploeg is working on a visual presentation of the work plan. Pam has asked supervisors to work on a resume and brief biography for the new Interim Director.

Pam was contacted by a leasing agent for Bellis Fair Mall concerning a branch. The agent said the mall is interested in having a branch and would be flexible about payment. When Pam receives further information she will put it in a file for a North Side branch.

Pam attended the Whatcom READS! quarterly board meeting. The Interim Director will automatically be a member of that board – all Whatcom County directors have a place at the table.

Pam mentioned a recent obituary and memorial service she attended for Julie Foster – she was active in the community, served as the Director of the YMCA for many years and also designed the original BPL logo.

Pam will be going to her last Library Council of Washington meeting in Kingston on Monday.

Pam thanked J. and Rick for attending the All Staff Meeting on October 26. They brought the staff up to speed on the director search and the sustainable funding study.

Tomorrow is the Meet & Greet and interviews for the three Interim Director candidates. The Meet & Greet will provide the staff with a chance to meet the candidates and share their first impressions through a feedback form.

Janice provided a few program highlights:

- On Saturday, October 22, we held an event to honor the Friends and Vicky Marshal. Ben Mann’s painting was unveiled and is now hanging in the Dodson Room. The painting was commissioned by the Friends with donations made in memoriam of Vicky Marshall. It was a lovely event.
Whatcom READS! 2017 is coming up. The 2017 title is The Revised Fundamentals of Caregiving by Jonathan Evison. Jonathan will be in town March 9-11, with the main event on the evening of March 10 at the Mount Baker Theatre.

A Ukulele session was held in the SkillShare Space with about 35 attendees, including Brian Griffin who makes ukuleles. Brian was impressed with the program and offered to present a program in the future.

Lola provided an update on the website refresh project: The current website was designed in 2008 and lives on an aging server. Steven Niedermeyer, Web Systems Analyst, has been working with us. The project is 85% complete. The new website is hosted by WPengine rather than the city server. The new site looks better, behaves better, and is optimized for mobile devices so we will no longer need the Library Now app. Launch is set for December 16. A huge thank you goes to the Friends for providing the funding for this $30,000 project!

Whatcom Community Foundation support for Foundation Center database: We are thrilled that the Whatcom Community Foundation has donated funding for a 5-year subscription to our Foundation Center database. We are an official satellite site for this non-profit resource which offers access to a suite of websites. Deborah Brewer serves as our liaison with the Foundation Center. Requirements include a print collection that supports non-profits and regular training sessions such as our Finding Funders programs.

2017 WCLS Interlocal Agreement: Pam previously provided the board with information about the history of the Interlocal Agreement with WCLS – documents for the establishment and continuance of the agreement. WCLS provided a proposal suggesting payment from WCLS to BPL was no longer justified based on usage numbers. Jennifer Vander Ploeg and Pam met with Brian Henshaw, Finance Director, who advised them on the most accurate statistics to determine if there is basis for payment. Jennifer and Lola are working on pulling those statistics. Pam suspects we can't justify the payment anymore, we have developed a seamless service with WCLS - both parties benefit from working together.

Trustee recruitment: Pam, J. and Rachel will be interviewing three candidates on November 30. All trustees saw all of the applications. Tom mentioned that the Board Commission met recently and is reviewing the process for nominating new board members, wanting to assure a good balance on all boards. Pam suggested the board give the interview committee authority to choose the candidate to recommend to the Mayor following the interviews. The board agreed.

Personnel update: Rick updated the board on the Interim Director search. Rick and J. met with City staff, who approved working with Kara Turner of Turner HR Services. Out of thirteen applicants Kara and Rick chose six people to interview via Skype. One applicant withdrew prior to the interviews. Following the Skype interviews, the committee chose three candidates for on-site interviews. A Meet & Greet is scheduled for the morning of November 17 so that staff have the opportunity to meet the candidates, followed by an Executive Session to conduct the interviews.

2017-2018 budget: A current Library Rates & Fees schedule is in the packet. Pam recommended the board not make any changes for 2017. Tom, noting that the last meeting room rate increase was in 2013, suggested raising all rooms by $5. Janice is currently exploring options on meeting rooms. April added that Parks is working on a rate study. The board will wait until the new data is received. Tom Barrett moved that Library Rates & Fees remain the same for 2017 until they are reviewed. Rachel Myers seconded. Motion carried.

Pam mention the remaining dates the Council will be working on the 2017-2018 budget: November 28 for any needed discussion; December 5 for approval; December 12 for 3rd and final approval.

Public Library Trustee Grants: Pam informed the board that there are Washington State Library grants available for trustee training.

Committee reports:
- Outreach Committee: Tom met with Faye Hill and discussed the Friends organization and Faye’s attendance at WCLS board meetings. Tom also met with Michael Lilliquist who requested information about the cost of a North Side branch. Tom forwarded the request to Pam, who sent information to Michael.
- Facilities Committee: no report.

2017 regular Library Board of Trustees meeting schedule: Pam provided the 2017 meeting schedule to the board with the caveat that the Interim Director may want to make changes. Rick Osen moved that the board accept the 2017 regular Library Board of Trustees meeting schedule. Rachel Myers seconded. Motion carried.

2017 City of Bellingham holidays & other library closures: Pam provided a list of city approved holidays and additional library closures:
- New Year’s Day, Sunday, January 1
- Sunday, April 16 – while not a city-observed holiday, the Library has typically closed on Easter Sunday because of low use
- Sunday, December 24, expected low use

New Business: The board will meet for dinner at Giuseppe’s on Tuesday, December 13 to honor Marilyn Mastor’s tenure as trustee. This will be noticed as a Special Meeting.

Action items for next meeting:
- Staff recognition for milestone years of service
- Library Board of Trustees transitions – Marilyn leaving, officer election
- Library Board 2016 accomplishments and 2017 goals
- Pam’s last meeting

Meeting adjourned at 5:33 p.m.

Next Regular Library Board Meeting – December 14, 2016 at the Central Library, 210 Central Avenue, Library Board Room – at 3:30 p.m.

Introduction: Our Progress to Date: December 2016

We are pleased to present this "at a glance" update to the library Strategic Plan 2013-2017, and to report that we are making good progress on meeting most of the goals outlined in the plan.

Many changes have occurred in our organization and in our environment since our Strategic Plan was adopted in early 2013. Some changes were driven by our own efforts and some by changes in technology and community needs, while others have been outside of our control. When the Strategic Plan was adopted, library leaders knew it would be a fluid plan and a living document, especially for those areas requiring additional funding and/or staff resources.

The strategic directions this plan describes remain very relevant today and form the core of the library’s work plan for 2017. This document is intended as a quick update indicating the library’s progress on key goals and objectives identified in the original plan. Please contact the library administration for information about any of the items described.
